warding suit in regard to mail matter, and it was not his duty to examine the copy, but the duty of the editor in New York.—The defendant, Mr. Edward Tracy Graves, was cross-examined by Sir Charles Russell. He said he had represented the New York World in London for half a year. He was connected with the paper in New York as night editor before he came to London. Major Noah became known to him within about three months after defendant came to London, and since that time he had been contributing to the New York World. He said he came to the court last Wednesday without knowing the contents of the article. He believed that he had himself nothing to do with it. He was in perfect ignorance of the statement made by Noah. He had never known a telegram of his own held back by the editor for inquiries, but when he thought the editor in New York ought to exercise his own judgment he sent the news by wire to New York, and he did not know the libel, and he did not know the photograph it, I mailed it so that the editor might exercise his own judgment.—Mr. May, the defendant's solicitor, having given some formal evidence, Mr. Reid proceeded to address the jury for the defence, maintaining that the defendant did not send the article to New York, and that he did not know it was there. He asked the jury to doubt the accuracy of the evidence of Major Noel.—Mr. C. Mathews having addressed the court on behalf of the plaintiff, the Lord Chief Justice, in summing up, said the publication was a gross libel. If Graves was responsible no damages were too great.—The jury found for the plaintiff, damages £1,000.

THE REVOLT IN VENEZUELA.
BOMB OUTRAGE AT CARACAS.
A bomb exploded while the streets of Caracas were thronged with the people on the occasion of the Minister of Finance, Senor Mattos, who recently advanced President Palacios a large sum of money, which is said to have been supplied by Gen. Guzman Blanco, who is a relative of Senor Mattos, on condition that the Minister should take the Customs receipts until the loan had been repaid. Senor Mattos's residence was much damaged, as was also the French Consulate adjoining. No one was hurt, but the people were for the moment seized with panic. The police on searching the adjacent houses found a bomb, several flasks of vitriol, and a number of rifles. The occupant of the house had fled. The Government vessel carrying the son of Senor Mattos, the Alfonso, was fired at by Guayra, entered Trinidad to coal, and the Venezuelan residents, who are in sympathy with the insurgents, helped the youth to escape. Dr. Palacios was greatly angered at the escape of this valuable helper.

A MEXICAN GIRL'S REVENGE.
A terrible story is reported from Los Ogizos, in San Miguel county, New Mexico. Jose Pedro, a young Spanish ranchero, who owned several square leagues of land, was the suitor of Isabella Marani, the wedding day having been fixed for the middle of April. On the afternoon of the day before the wedding feelings underwent an alteration, and there was no wedding, though all the preparation for it had been made. Pedro carried this slight so far as to marry another young woman, Angelica Montan. Subsequently, Senorita Marani rode over to Pedro's ranch during the night, and with the aid of her maid, she opened the door to the bride and bridegroom taking their afternoon sleep. She chloroformed both of them and cut their tongues out. She rode away at full speed, but an alarm being given, was pursued by an United States marshal. He called at her house to arrest her, and found her apparently quiet and docile. When he asked her to accompany him to the marshal's office, she, in great quietude, the infuriated girl stabbed him in the breast, and he dropped to the floor dying. The murderers is now under arrest, but the conviction prevails that she is insane. Both Pedro and his wife will recover, but will never be able to articulate.

A SINGULAR DIVORCE CASE.
WHEELDON V. WHEELDON.—This was the husband's petition. The marriage took place on Christmas Day, 1862. At that time the husband was (said the learned counsel) clerk in a solicitor's office in London, and they lived together until 1869. The husband then lost his employment, owing to the partnership of the solicitors being dissolved. Subsequently he went to America. Mrs. Wheelton, now lived with his wife at her father's and her mother's house in the Old Kent-road. He then took a position as canvasser at an insurance office at Liverpool, and travelled about the country. When he returned home at the end of 1869 he found that his wife had been living with another man, and he then left him a note, in which she said it was going to leave him for ever. He did not receive any information as to her whereabouts until 1873, when he ascertained that she was living at Erith. He went there and saw her. Her appearance was totally changed. She had (said the learned counsel) dyed her hair, changed her colour, her person was covered with jewellery, and she was "gaudily got up." He remonstrated with her, and asked her to return home; but, taking a bracelet on her wrist, she said, "I have quite done with love in a cottage; this my world now." After that the petitioner did not hear anything of his wife. He then found, about a year ago, that she had been living with a Spanish gentleman named Bayo from the year 1875 down to the time of his death in 1888, sometimes in London and sometimes in Portugal. In the summer of 1888 the mother of the respondent called on him, and said his wife was living with Mary, Carr, a widow, in the presence of one of the children of the Spanish gentleman she had been left pretty destitute. She appealed to him for help, saying he was the only friend she had in the world. He sent her £20, and then returned to England and commenced anning him. Subsequently, in 1891, he gave instructions to his solicitor to sue for divorce, but he only did so after great hesitation, having (remarked counsel) a disinclination to proceed in the Divorce Court, owing to the position he had obtained through his writings in the magazines and newspapers.—His solicitor granted a decree nisi.

At a meeting of the Pontefract Committee on Thursday night a resolution was passed in favour of erecting a lake in the park for amusement purposes, and a committee appointed to consider the details. The cost is estimated at £1,000.

The ruffianly element seems to have got upper hand at Kentsish Town and adjacent district of Gospel Oak. At a meeting of the Ratepayers' Association, held at the St. Pancras Reform Club, Prince Wales-road, Kentsish Town, the other evening, a resolution was passed to oppose the carrying out of the destruction of property which is daily occurring in the neighbourhood, and one gentleman produced from his pocket some large stones and pieces of brick which had been flung through either the windows or panels of the door of his house. It was decided to petition the commissioner of police for increased police protection.

Oliver H. Stell, aged 56, and Mary H. Long, aged 51, of Valparaiso, Ind., have been united in marriage. They were betrothed thirty years ago, but drifted apart, and chose other life partners.

If (says the Horticultural Times, in a curious computation) there was but one potato in the world, a careful cultivator might produce 10,000,000,000 from it in ten years, and that would supply the world with seed again.

During 1891, 334,000 persons of all classes and all nationalities, including our own, left the United Kingdom for places abroad. Of these 218,000 were British and Irish, and 260,000 were foreign passengers or emigrants proper.

"It," says Mr. Haldane, "an eight hours' bill is to be passed, it ought not to be in the interest of a single class, and especially of one distinguished by the efficiency of its power of combination whenever that power has been seriously tried."

Harry Rogers, of Eureka, California, horse-peddler, the Rev. Father O'Kane, a Roman Catholic clergyman, in a public street of that town. The trouble grew out of assertions respecting the honesty of Rogers' wife, made from the altar some time ago.

In the Melbourne Parliament House there are several billiard tables; and now the legislators have actually spent £1,152 on the erection of a bowling pavilion in the Parliamentary gardens, which had been previously provided with a lawn-tennis court.

Lord Brassey declares that he "fully recognizes the desirability of an eight hours' limit of labour as a matter of practice," but he thinks that any such arrangement could be far better adjusted by the working men themselves in negotiation with their employers than by a universal law.

Mrs. Joseph Elliott, of Shire Oaks, near McKeesport, Penna., died in great agony from the effects of a dose of carbolic acid, administered by her physician in mistake for ergot. The physician discovered his error almost immediately, but it was too late to save the woman's life.

Two little islands furnish four-fifths of the cloves consumed by the world. These islands are Zanzibar and Pemba; and while ago Arabs found it very profitable to bring slaves from the African lake region to the coast, and smuggle them in the night over to Pemba to work on the clove plantations.

A notable feature of the forthcoming inter-Parliamentary Peace Conference will be the attendance of a large number of German and Austrian delegates. Hitherto the Teutons have looked askance at the movement, but there will be present at this year's gathering no fewer than sixty German and forty or fifty Austrian delegates.

At an inquest held at Poplar on a woman with regard to whom a verdict of natural death was returned, the coroner, the coroner, having elicited that a medical assistant who visited her was not qualified, the jury strongly condemned the practice of employing unqualified assistants, and added a rider to this effect to their verdict.

A labourer, named Stephens, was charged at the Thames Police Court with stealing a horse and van containing fourteen chests of tea, worth £113. The theft took place on May 2nd, in the momentary absence of the driver, and the cart was subsequently seen eluding before he was apprehended. Stephens was remanded.

Rufus Jenkins, a deposed pastor, living at Knoxville, in Tennessee, was taken from his house by a band of White Caps and cowards so brutally that he is not expected to survive his injuries. Jenkins had deserted his wife, who in turn fled upon him, set fire to his dwelling, and then beat him.

"I know more about Ireland," says the Right Hon. J. Lowther, "than Mr. Gladstone, Sir William Harcourt, or Mr. J. Morley, as I have had more experience there than all these three put together. If Parliament is unwise enough to pass what is called Home Rule, and cast away the allegiance of Ulster, it will have to do so at the risk of a great deal of bloodshed of the loyal population of Ireland."

Right opposite the site of Scott's Supper Rooms, and occupying the whole south side of the present Coventry-street between the Haymarket and Hedge-lane, stood the famous gaming-house built by the Earl of Pembroke's barber, and thence called Shaver's Hall, although it was more politely described in 1635, in a letter to Lord Strafford, as "a new spring garden, erected in the fields beyond the Mole."

At the beginning of the

The author, Dr. Kratshmer, has found thirty-one hitherto unknown maps illustrative of the discovery of the Western Continent.

The Melbourne legislators possess an expensive taste. No less than £511,168, 9d. has been expended on the fitting up of a bedroom for the Speaker—a little bill that in the opinion of local critics the colony in its present circumstances ought not to be called upon to pay.

The following are among the regulations for the guidance of barmaids in a big Manchester hotel:—"No flowers or gaudy dresses, give what is paid for, and be obliging and attentive to customers. No leaning over the counter or unnecessary talk on the part of barmaids with customers."

There is another candidate for the vacant metropolitan coronership. Mr. Robert Dunstan, of Acre-lane, Brixton, has been entered in the lists.

Mr. Dunstan is well known in the north of London, where he is resident in Brixton, he took an active part in local, social and philanthropic work.

Mr. Hare is utterly opposed to the drama proper being played at music halls, but is not opposed to "sketches." He considers that these may be easily improved in literary quality, so as to "elevate" music hall entertainments without injuring the drama and dramatic art.

As a former director of the Tivoli Music Hall, on the Strand, Mr. Edward Terry states that during his tenure of office the refreshment money bore the proportion of about 45 per cent. compared with the door money. This proportion, Mr. Terry may like to know, has been reduced to 20 per cent.

M. Grévin, the French caricaturist, whose death is just reported, made a name for himself as a designer of costumes, especially for theatrical pieces and masked balls. His success as a costumer was so notable that a ladies' tailor even offered him £2,000 a year for his exclusive services. Grévin, however, refused this.

The ex-Premier for the present makes Lord Aberdeen's residence at Dollis Hill his headquarters. He will come to town frequently from there to attend the House of Commons, and will return the same evening, except when anything important occurs in the House. He will then sleep at Carlton House Gardens.

The Duke and Duchess of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha received a most beautiful present from an anonymous giver on the occasion of their golden wedding, consisting of a golden clock of exquisite workmanship, having on the lid medallions of the duke and duchess surrounded by a myrtle wreath, and on the sides verses of Coburg.

Signalling-sergeant George Morris, of the Royal Lancaster Regiment, at Aldershot, was found dead in bed with a rifle by his side. He had evidently shot himself by means of a bullet fastened from the trigger to his foot. By his side was a photograph of his deceased wife. He had been in a spending state of late, and had been disappointed by not being certified medically fit for foreign service.

This is Mr. Ben Tillett's electioneering programme:—Adult suffrage, a legal eight hours' day, payment of all M.P.'s and all local governing bodies, establishment of a bureau of Home Rule, nationalisation of land, free administration of justice, establishment of State or municipal workshops for the unemployed, complete transference of the burden of taxation from the wage earners to the recipients of interest, and popular election of magistrates and county court judges.

Sir John Lubbock again defends the local administration of London. Its average expenditure per head is (he says) £2 10s., against £2 10s. in Birmingham, £3 4s. in Manchester (excluding in both cases the amount spent on gas and water), £5 4s. in Paris, and over £8 in New York.

The number of divorces occurring in the United States can only be calculated roughly, but an estimate founded on the statistics applicable to Suffolk County (which includes the city of Boston) gives 60,434 as the probable annual total at the present time.

Another estimate, however, gives the number at 35,000 per annum.

Declares Lord George Hamilton:—"Although Parliament has a right to command the allegiance of the Loyalists of the north of Ireland, it has no right to cast off their allegiance and to forever subject them to the domination of a combination that only six years ago was declared by Mr. Gladstone to be a criminal conspiracy."

A remarkable instance of voting under difficulties was afforded at North Hackney in the case of a gentleman who is almost completely paralysed. His medical attendant drove him to Warwick-road, and the presiding officer, with the representatives of both parties, brought out a gun from the carriage.

The Duke of Devonshire, besides delivering an address in Glasgow, at St. Andrew's Hall, on the evening of the 27th of May, is undertaking another duty. He will, as president of the Glasgow University Liberal Unionists Club, visit the Students' Union at the University in the course of that day, and accept a presentation from the students.

The Italian Ordnance Department has just been offered the sole right of purchasing a portable projectile of conical form, which, on being shot from a cannon and striking an object, produces a luminous disc of 100,000 candle power. Cannon are being cast, and will have the effect of suddenly lighting up the enemy's position at night.

"Trade unionists," declared Alderman Taylor to Lord Salisbury, "have to pay for their labour, and through the support of those who are out of work through the action of other men in doing two men's work for one man's pay. If the eight hours' system were introduced on our railways it would at once give employment to 100,000 men, without any risk of promoting foreign competition."

The death is announced, in his 66th year, of Edward James (formerly called John) of Tower Ward, in the City of London, and who retired from that position in September last on the eve of the election to the mayoralty, for which he stood next in rotation.

Mr. Gray served the ward in the Common Council from 1851 to 1883, when he succeeded Mr. Alderman Fennell as alderman, and will retain the office until the 31st of March, 1893, when he will be succeeded by Mr. J. Middlesex, which office he filled in 1889.

The Board of Trade have awarded a bronze medal for humanity in saving life at sea to William Parnell, skipper of the fishing smack British Queen, of Ramsgate, in recognition of his services in rescuing the shipwrecked crew of the brigantine Caroline, of Faversham, which was wrecked on the North Foreland on the 11th of December, 1891.

The board also awarded a bronze medal for gallantry in saving life at sea, and a sum of £2 each, to Joseph Buckate, second hand, and Charles Pottle, third hand, of the British Queen, who manned the rescuing boat on the occasion.

Land at a penny farthing an acre must be considered to be moderate. Yet that, according to Mr. J. W. Denton, in a lecture to the Chartered Accountants' Students' Society, was the price at which Napoleon Bonaparte, in 1803, sold Louisiana to the United States.

A Frenchman named La Salle had, in 1717, after descending the Mississippi, claimed for the French Crown the whole lands lying to the west of that river as far as his trip extended. Up to the date of purchase, with the exception of the neighbourhood of New Orleans, this territory was an unknown region, and in exchange for it, Napoleon was glad to get a sum of £3,000,000 sterling.

Mr. Lawson Tait, at the unveiling of the Tonks Memorial at Wilsheal, had a kind word to say in behalf of the humble members of his profession. A medical man, he observed, might be a "well" practitioner, with numbers of degrees, who flew hither and thither over the face of the world, conferring a benefit, perhaps, here and there, but receiving high fees for it; or he might be a man who was doing humble work by the bedside of the poor, and doing out a living on a practice bringing in an average of only 6s. a week.

On the question of which of the two was the more valuable to society, Mr. Tait confessed himself disposed to back the man of 6s. a week.

OWBRIDGE'S

LUNG TONIC,
THE MIGHTY HEALER.

It has a power over diseases hitherto unknown in medicine.

Are you at all weak-chested, or inclined to be Consumptive, with just a touch of Cough sore and throat?

Get this Wonderful Medicine. "The

Cough and Weakness will disappear as if by magic, and you will feel a strength and power you never had before.

HAVE YOU A COUGH?
A DOSE WILL RELIEVE IT.
HAVE YOU A COLD?
A DOSE AT BEDTIME WILL REMOVE IT.
BRONCHITIS AND ASTHMA IT RELIEVES INSTANTLY.

The Spasms of Coughing, so dreadful in Whooping Cough, become less with each dose of the medicine.

"I had brought two years. My doctor said it was chronic, and I gave up all hope of cure, but three small bottles of your Lung Tonic cured me. I feel it my duty to write to thank you. — SARAH BLACK, 26, Mary-street, East Ham-borough."
 "I have known your Lung Tonic cure a child of ten, as if by magic, after many other remedies, and in one change of air and diet he failed. I know it also to be invaluable to vocalists, lecturers, and public speakers. —
 W. G. STANLEY, Professor of Surgery, 36,
 Oxford-street, London."
